Creating a One-Liner

Things to remember about The One Liner:

1. It is composed of 3 parts
2. It answers the question “what do you do?”
3. It can be expanded into a full elevator pitch

Ways to Use Your One-Liner

- Put it on your business card
- Make it your email signature
- Paint it on the wall in your retail space
- Use it as your social media bio

1. Start by stating the problem or pain point that most of your clients face.

Circuit E-Bike Example: With 110 people moving to Nashville every day, people are wasting more and more time sitting in traffic.

2. Talk about your solution to the problem you just stated.

Circuit E-Bike Example: With a Circuit E-Bike fitted just for you,

3) Then, talk about the result someone will experience if they buy that product.

Circuit E-Bike Example: you'll get to work faster and add hours back in your day.

Now, let's put it all together:

Circuit E-Bike Example: With 110 people moving to Nashville every day, people are wasting more and more time sitting in traffic. With a Circuit E-bike fitted just for you, you'll get to work faster and add hours back in your day.

Once your One-Liner is refined, memorize it. Have your entire team memorize it. Do whatever you need to do in order to commit it to memory. When everyone on your team can repeat the same one-liner, your entire staff turns into a sales force.

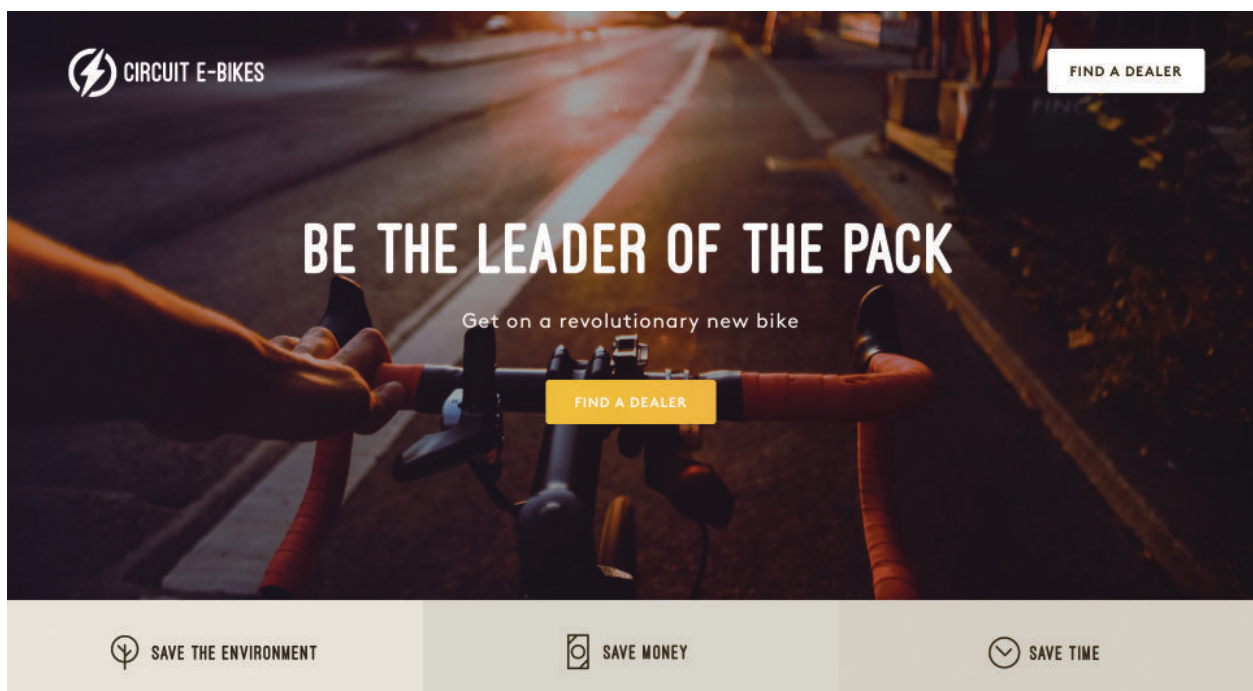

Wireframe a Landing Page

Things to remember when wire-framing a landing page:

1. People don't read websites, they scan them
2. The header should pass the grunt test
3. Use section headers

Write a lead-generating PDF

Things to remember when writing a lead generator:

1. It should add value and give away helpful content for free
2. It should establish yourself as the authority in your field of expertise
3. It should resolve a problem the customer is facing and create a sense of reciprocity
4. It should get an email address
5. It should have an interesting title

Types of lead generators you can write:

1. Magazine Article
2. Interview
3. Checklist

5. Free samples

10 WAYS AN E-BIKE WILL MAKE AND SAVE YOU MONEY

So, you've had it up to here with Nashville traffic.
We're totally with you on that.

You'd love to find a faster, less-frustrating way to get to work—and while you've considered an e-bike, all you can see is the initial charging. Sure, e-bikes seem a bit spendy. But over time—and not very much time—an e-bike will actually make and save you money.

With an e-bike, you can:

1. Say goodbye to the gas station

OK, you're right: If you plan to keep your car, you can't completely ditch the pump. But if you hop on your e-bike for even half your trips, you'll enjoy a significant dip in your gas expenses.

2. Sell your car

Yes, really. Living in Nashville without a car is totally doable, especially with an e-bike. If that makes you hyperventilate, we get it. Going car-free is a fairly significant life change for most people. But given Nashville's WeGo system and ride-sharing options, there's never been a better time to give it a go.

3. Scale back your insurance premiums

Car insurance premiums are partly determined by how many miles you drive. With your e-bike, you'll cut down on mileage—which means lower rates.

4. Decrease maintenance costs

By using your e-bike for short drives, you'll save wear and tear on your car, so you'll have fewer trips to the shop. Also, while e-bikes require some minimal upkeep, you can learn to do most of that yourself.

5. Eliminate parking fees

Have you ever seen a credit card reader on a bike rack? We haven't either.

6. Launch a side hustle

With the time you'll save using your e-bike, you'll finally have the bandwidth to work on that million-dollar idea of yours.

7. Quit your gym

Studies show 91% of people with e-bikes ride daily or weekly. If you're like most people, that's way better than your track record at the gym. With your e-bike—an exercise option you'll actually use—you can ditch that pricey membership.

8. Slash your medical bills

Although e-bikes offer pedal-assist when you want it, you're still moving more, and that has undeniable health benefits. With your e-bike, you'll improve your overall physical fitness, decrease stress, and spend less money at the doctor's office and pharmacy.

9. Buy less stuff

Obviously, a typical e-bike has less cargo space than a hatchback. But is that such a bad thing? How many times have you meant to pick up “just a couple of things” at the store and “accidentally” left with $100 worth of stuff? With your e-bike, you'll prevent unnecessary purchases and make Marie Kondo super-proud. Win-win!

10. Get a raise

Instead of wasting time in traffic, you could be at the office crushing your to-do list and impressing your boss. You're due for a raise, aren't you?

LIFE'S TOO SHORT TO SIT IN TRAFFIC.
SAVE MONEY AND TIME WITH AN E-BIKE.

Write an email campaign

Things to remember when writing an email campaign:

1. Make the copy conversational and use active language
2. Use short sentences and short words
3. The emails you send should on-ramp your customer to your product or service at the speed of relationship
5. Each email should have one clear, focused call to action
6. Pay attention to your subject lines

Types of emails you can write:

1. Delivery of the asset
2. Problem + solution
3. Testimonial
4. Paradigm shift
5. Overcome an objection

Subject line: You aren't checking your email while you're stuck on I-24, are you?

Hey [First Name],

With 110 people moving to Nashville every day, people are wasting more and more time sitting in traffic. In fact, the average Nashvillian spends nearly 34 hours stuck in traffic every year.

It seems like those delays happen at the worst possible moments, too: When you're already five minutes late for a meeting. When your kid's play starts in exactly seven minutes. When your mom was expecting you for dinner half an hour ago.

Traffic wastes time and adds stress. Life's too short for that. Don't you think?

With a Circuit E-Bike fitted just for you, you'll get hours back in your day, get to your destination faster, and breeze through life. Let's get you fitted for your new e-bike.

P.S.

Subject line: Don't buy that bike just yet...

Hey [First Name],

Let's recap: You're sick of traffic. You're tired of feeling stuck. You'd love to find a new way to get to work. You're strongly considering ditching your car for a bike. And you're leaning toward a traditional bike because e-bikes are just too expensive.

We were with you right up until that last one.

Let's do a quick review of that PDF we sent a few days ago, 10 Ways an E-Bike Will Make and Save You Money. With an e-bike, you can:

1. Say goodbye to the gas station.
2. Sell your car.
3. Scale back your insurance premiums.
4. Decrease maintenance costs.
5. Eliminate parking fees.
6. Launch a side hustle.
7. Quit your gym.
8. Slash your medical bills.
9. Buy less stuff.
10. Get a raise.

I know what you're thinking: but J.J. and Koula, I could do all of that with a traditional bike, too. Maybe so. But you probably won't, and here's why:

- Sweat. We know: Ewww. But have you considered how gross you'll get pedaling uphill on an August morning in Nashville? That's no way to impress your boss, friend. With an e-bike's pedal-assist, you'll skip the sweating.

- Time. Riding a traditional bike to work may save a bit of time on your commute—but nothing like the average e-bike’s 20 MPH zip. If you’re running late, you’ll probably opt for your car. Again.
- Energy. Picture this: You’ve had a glorious weekend and you’re annoyed that it’s Monday already. How excited are you going to be about pedaling your way to work? Not at all excited. How about jumping on your e-bike and letting the motor whisk you to the office? Super excited. (OK, maybe only marginally excited. It is Monday, after all.)

Yes, you could buy a less-expensive, traditional bike. But chances are good you won’t use it nearly as much as you would an e-bike. If at all. Now that sounds like an expensive idea.

Subject line: How Sam saved $1200 and lost 12 pounds with her Circuit E-Bike

Hey [First Name],

With more than 20,000 happy riders, we've heard a lot of great Circuit E-Bike stories. This one from Sam blew us away:

I've lived in Nashville for years, and I adore this town. But as other people have discovered our amazing city, the traffic has gotten ridiculous. Last summer, after cursing through an entire week of stop-and-go traffic, I was done. I was desperate to park my car for good, but I didn't want to be tied to the public bus schedule.

My Circuit E-Bike has been an amazing solution! I have to admit the price scared me a bit, but it's been worth every penny. I've obviously cut back on gas expenses, and because I don't have to battle traffic, my commute is so much more enjoyable. Not only that, I quit the gym because I'd much rather ride. So far I've lost 12 pounds. I've explored parts of Nashville I never bothered to by car (hello, free parking!), and I can't remember the last time I got an oil change. In just 11 months, I've saved more than $1200.

*Thank you so much,
Sam*

Wow, right? Life is too short to be stuck in traffic. Find a dealer today. Here's to happy commutes,

P.S. Feeling skeptical about Sam's weight loss? E-bikes aren't real exercise are they? Great question. Watch for our next email. In the meantime, check out this list of bike paths in Nashville. (Yes, e-bikes are allowed on bike paths! Where will you start?)

Subject line: Riding an e-bike is “cheating.” Isn’t it?

Hey [First Name],

Cycling is fantastic exercise. It burns calories, builds muscles, and boosts your cardiovascular health. But what about e-cycling? People who are serious about getting in shape often dismiss e-bikes as “cheating.” Since a motor helps you pedal, you can’t possibly derive any real benefits, right?

Actually, you can.

Now, obviously if you were to pedal a traditional bike for 60 minutes, you’re going to burn more calories than if you let an e-bike “help” you for an hour. But here’s something to think about: Most people aren’t going to ride a traditional bike for that long. In fact, as soon their legs get sore or they feel a little winded, they quit. With an e-bike, you can take a quick breather while the motor does most (but not all) of the work—and then get back at it.

In fact, research shows e-bikes encourage people to cycle twice as long—and for twice the distance—as traditional bikes.

E-bikes can help you save time and money, and they’re also a good investment in your health. And an e-bike is definitely less expensive than a heart attack.

Write a sales letter that closes the deal

Things to remember when writing a sales letter:

1. Talk about the problem you solve for your customers
2. Include one focused, direct call to action
3. Clearly define what life will look like if someone buys your product or service
4. Offer a limited time bonus or tell them their offer is going away

Subject line: Breeze through life on a Circuit E-Bike—now on sale!

Hey [First Name],

If you're like most Nashvillians, you've spent 34 hours sitting in traffic in the past year. And, like the rest of us, you're fed up with feeling stuck.

Thanks to traffic delays:

- You're late for work more and more frequently.
- You've missed appointments.
- You arrive at your destination stressed out and frustrated.

You feel like you have better ways to spend your time, and you want a new way to get to work.

We couldn't agree more. Life's too short, and you shouldn't waste it sitting in traffic.

Just look at how Jack took back control of his schedule with a Circuit E-bike:

Over the last couple of years, my 25-mile commute stretched from 35 minutes to nearly an hour. It was nearly impossible for me to get my kids on the bus and still beat rush hour, so I started getting in late. My boss was understanding, but I needed that time to get my work done. I started riding my Circuit E-Bike to work three months ago, and I just couldn't be happier. I feel like I've regained control of my schedule! - Jack H.

If you've been considering a Circuit E-Bike, here's your chance. For a limited time, you can get on the road with a new e-bike for $250 off. Join the ranks of commuters like Jack and take back control of your schedule and your life.

It's easy to get started:

1. Get fitted.
2. Choose a bike.
3. Lead the pack.
